

The rules for public TV need to provide for a safe haven from the addictive nature of pornography and graphic language. I am appalled that there are individuals in this country that somehow believe that it is "Good" to have access to salacious and provocative content, especially for young people. This country will be destroyed by this type of crude and unnecessary "entertainment". There are plenty of outlets on the internet, cable TV etc for this type of content. The FCC should be ashamed to consider themselves looking out for the best interests of the public when they know for a fact that this type of material only leads to a degradation of our society.
